Nelson Lee's Account of what he saw among the Camanches.

The Albany Knickerbocker notices the return to that city of Nelson Lee, who was taken prisoner by distinction. As is the case with all spirits that the Camanche Indians in 1856, near Eagle pass, have been long held in restraint, the momentary while on his way from Texas to California. He emancipation is carried to extravagance. Working furnishes the following:

During the tramp they met a party of Indians; the Indians gave the chief a skin filled with liquor. The chief drank of the spirits and became excited. Arriving at a creek he dismounted and stooped down to drink. At this moment Lee seized his tomahawk, split his head open and killed him instantly. He then took the chief's rifle, mounted the chief's horse, and put for Mexico. When he reached Mexico he was completely naked, while his feet and legs were so swollen from being cut by Witnesses generally suppose that they are obliged cactus plant, that he could go only eight miles a day. A NEW YORK SENSATION ITEM .- The usual serenity of the fashionable locality of avenue C, on the East River side, has recently given place to scenes of a scandalous and alarming nature. A young lady, the daughter of a wealthy oyster merchant residing in the above neighborhood, was jilted several months ago by a foreign gentleman of rank, a Dutch rag-picker, who boarded under the same roof. The girl, although one of the loveliest specimens of womankind, was rendered callous by the hopelessness of her restoration to respectable society, and she accordingly submitted the dazzling effulgence of her beauty to the gaze of the heartless people of that fashionable locality with considerable reluctance, whenever she was obliged to go to the hydrant for water. In this way she had lived about two months, when, one evening last week, she met her jilter at one of our ed, notwithstanding the strennous efforts that were made to arrest her; and hiring a vehicle, she was extreme suburbs of the city, and adjacent to the

WHO THE DEUCE WAS IT?-A respectable gentleman in Windsor County, Vermont, many years ago, had an ambition to represent his town in the State Legislature. Though a man of good character and every way able enough for the office he sought, he happened, as Aunt Peggy used to say, to have "a great many winning ways to make folks hate him," and was, in fact, the most unpopular man in town. Going to 'Squire X., an influential man who happened to be friendly to him, he laid his case before him and asked his influence; saying that he didn't expect help without paying for it, and declaring that if he could get X.'s influence he was sure to be elected. The 'Squire " put in his best jumps" for his man, but when the ballotbox was turned another man was declared elected. The disappointed candidate called out to know how the votes stood, and learned that he had got just three votes! "But I don't understand it," said he ders, and they were transported for life to Sibeturning to the 'Squire with a chop-fallen countenance. Hindoo Women.

Never enjoying female society, their lives are passed in the extreme listlessnes. It is this which produces so many instances of women burning themselves. The husband's death is a revolution in their existance, which gives an opening for the mind's bursting out of the ordinary track of depression. They have a confused notion that this our is the only one which can occur to them for urnishes the following:

The Rights of Witnesses.

According to a recent decision in England, a witness is not obliged to answer questions put by counsel in a hectoring or bullying tone; in any other tone than one gentleman uses in addressing another. If this principle be acted upon here, we fear certain gentlemen of the bar will have to reform their style of examining witnesses. We hear a great deal about the license of the press; but the license of the bar is an abuse equally great. to answer any question put by the counsel, no matter in how rude or bullying a tone. This is a mistake. Any witness has the power of protecting himself against the license of the bar, during the examination, by simply remarking that he will answer the question when it is put in a proper and becoming tone; and while he preserves his equanimity, refuses to answer any question put in a bullying or ungentlemanly manner. They completed the order, stacked up and delivered the balls, received their pay, and put the money in their pockets. The Emperor being there one day took it into his head to inspect the balls.
